Hi Fhumulani,

Thanks so much for your interest in the Frontend Development at [REDACTED] I'm very happy to let you know that you've successfully moved forward to the next stage - congratulations!

At this stage, I'd appreciate if you could briefly answer a few short questions to help us better understand your professional approach and way of thinking.

Please reply directly to this email with your responses within 3 days. For security reasons, we don't open external files or attachments, so make sure to type your answers directly into your reply (please use the "Reply" button rather than sending a new message).

Questions:

1. Have you ever independently handled troubleshooting or debugging tasks on frontend projects? If yes, briefly describe at least one concrete challenge you faced and your solution. If not, please clearly state this.
2. Have you ever communicated directly with designers or non-technical stakeholders about adjusting project requirements during development? If yes, briefly describe at least one concrete challenge you faced during that communication and how you handled it. If not, clearly state this.
3. When encountering technical difficulties during a project, do you typically seek immediate guidance or attempt to resolve issues independently first? Briefly explain your preference.
4. Do you prefer strictly following established design guidelines, or having creative freedom when developing frontend solutions? Briefly justify your choice.

Thanks again - I look forward to reading your responses and learning more about you! Once I receive your answers, I should get back to you within 5 days.

Sincerely,

Senior HR Strategist
